DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1-13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Currie (5,178,537). Currie discloses a pre-sterilized, disposable tip individually packaged comprising a monolithic polymeric tip 14 having a coupling element 22 at a proximal end; a sealed container individually packaging the tip, wherein the tip is sterilizable in the container (column 2 line 38, figure 4). Patentable weight is not given to the intended use of the tip. As to claim 2, the polymer is nylon (column 2 line 25). As to claims 3-5, patentable weight is not given to the process by which the packaged tip is made because a product claim is properly met if the final product is shown regardless of the process used. However, Currie shows the tip is molded (column 5 line 51) and the sealed container sterilized by gas permeation or irradiation (column 4 line 65). As to claim 6, the coupling element comprises threads (figure 2). As to claim 7, the container comprises paper (column 4 line 39). As to claim 8, the container comprises polymeric film (column 4 line 37). As to claim 10, Currie shows a method for supplying a sterilized, single-use, disposable tip comprising forming a polymeric tip, individually packaging the tip in a sealed container, and sterilizing the packaged tip. As to claim 11, the method shows coupling the packaged tip with other tips and packaging the coupled tips as a quantity package. As to claims 12 and 13, the distribution of the tips in bulk or individually is inherently shown in the method of Currie.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 10-19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Himeno et al. (5,899,693) in view of Currie. Himeno et al. discloses a method of using a disposable tip with an ultrasonic dental scaler comprising attaching the tip 2 to a dental insert B, securing the dental insert in a handpiece C of a dental scaler, operating the scaler to clean dental implants (column 1 line 25), and disposing the tip after use (column 3 line 11). However, Himeno et al. do not show supplying a sterilized polymeric tip. Currie teaches method steps forming a polymeric tip, individually packaging the tip in a sealed container, sterilizing the packaged tip, and removing the tip from the container. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the method of Himeno et al. to include the steps of supplying the tip as in Currie. One would be motivated to make such a modification to have tip that is inexpensive, easy to attach, and minimizes the risk of infection or disease in view of Currie. The step of transporting the sealed container to a dental office is inherently performed in using the tip. It would have been an obvious matter of choice to one of ordinary skill in the art as to the known material of the dental implant. Use of titanium implant is not critical to the claimed methods. As to claim 14, it is would have been an obvious matter of choice to one of ordinary skill in the art as to the sealing of the container as the specification states that "[a]ny of a variety of packaging methods can be employed". As to claim 19, it would have been an obvious matter of choice to one of ordinary skill in the art to sterilize the dental insert and repeat the steps with a different patient, since it is known in the art that inserts are sterilized after each patient and the dental practitioner performs the dental treatment on a recurring basis.

Conclusion

5. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Hahn et al. (6,273,717) and Davis et al. (5,342,195) are cited to show the state of the art with respect to dental ultrasonic tips and dental disposable tips, respectively.
